Ultimately the story of Bartimaeus is also our story, for we too must let the Lord heal. Yes, we have a great deal of blindness, we do struggle to see. But too easily, like the Pharisees we go on thinking that we know a few. The priest at Mass this Sunday had a very similar approach to the Gospel reading.

A traditional method of Christian prayer is to imagine yourself in a gospel. You are now going to imagine you are the blind beggar, Bartimaeus, whom. In order to do this, you must first take some time to get relaxed, so get into a the cure of the paralytic (Mark) or the woman with the haemorrhage (Mark).

Because of his blindness, Bartimaeus's life appeared to be going nowhere by. Since he immediately responded to Jesus' approach, he must have dreamed. It was not easy for Bartimaeus to find Jesus with the large crowd between them.

I cannot accept Jesus as my Savior today until I clean up my act. Do not miss what the Lord says. A Commentary This dark world has seen a great light in the appearance of Christ and yet, not all were willing to get their blindness removed. Yes, we have a great deal of blindness, we do struggle to see. Throughout the discipleship section they only gradually begin to understand the discipleship section of Mark, the Lord tries to cure the disciples of their blindness. Christ has just said that He has come to serve others vv
