In both cases they have difficulty in their personal life, and in relating to others and have carried the emotional wounds from childhood into adulthood. Having already been quite critical of the plot, I feel it would be unfair to lay into the characterisation too much, although personally I did find the main police protagonist, DI Helen Grace, a little strained. It was very fast paced but so much so that at times I felt lost. It's been done better with "Saw" and an episode of "Criminal Minds". The person who remains is permitted to go free, and one such example is the second kidnapping When I'm done reading this book do I have to read the other books of the series to get the full story?

Cuando estos espectros se tornan violentos, secuestro a la salud mental de repente, la familia Carter se encuentra en una desolada franja de desierto, donde no parece haber un ser vivo en mil millas a la redonda. This could have been a nice summer read [1] It wasn't the cliches.
