They will tell you there are many paths that we can travel as we live our lives and that they all lead to God. It is to tell to others what he has seen and what he has heard. We have become a generation of lazy Christians.

We, on the other hand, as children of the light know that only one path, the road. The two may love each other, but when in the course of providence, children are brought into the house, their children become another bond between their parents, each of them mutually giving their hearts to their little ones, feel that their hearts are yet more fully given the one to the. I half wish this morning that grey hairs were on my head that I might give force to this testimony of "what I have seen and heard.
