Environmental Planning and Management. The aim is to identify the ways in Europe globalization processes might be made more compatible and connected with the normative goals of development and sustainability, as set out in international agreements such as the World Summits on Environment and Development, the Millennium Development Goals MDGs and the emerging Sustainable Development Goals SDGs. Where possible we have endeavoured to create situations where target audiences can be engaged in meaningful processes of knowledge construction so that the products of the project can be transformed into action across multiple sectors.

Brazil, China, Malaysia, Mexico, and South Africa, as well as Indonesia, Thailand, and the Philippines. The project is open to all Private for-profit entities excluding Higher or Secondary Education Establishments. The success of this environmental public awareness has resulted in consumer preferences evolving.
